

ABSTRACT

A device and method for machining low case hardened steel connecting rods, whereby a big end of a connecting 5 rod is subjected to traction to break a cap off the big end; traction is exerted by two traction members, which are inserted inside an eye of the connecting rod and are parted in a direction parallel to a rod of the connecting rod; and the traction members have thrust 10 surfaces with different radii of curvature.

15

20 R:\users\imittendorf\email\Piana et al - appln.